

What you see is what you get

New management and some shrewd business analysis has refocused Hindin Communications on what it does best – supply excellent business solutions backed up with knowledge powered software tools. To emphasise this, the company has also changed its name to Hindin Solutions Ltd.

“This reflects what our business has actually been for some years” said the new General Manager, Dr. Mark English. “We have been producing a range of software tools that leverage corporate knowledge and business acumen into fantastic, straight forward business solutions. It wasn’t rocket science to acknowledge this direction in the company name.” This change is also reflected in the upcoming product portfolio which will be available as business components for use in a mix and match solution orientation.

Hindin Solutions has been exceeding customer expectations for over a decade with its offering of Business Analysis, Training, Change and Project Management around solutions based on the Hindin software products in the Contact Centre, Contracts Management and Government sectors. The flagship for many years has been the KnowledgeBase product for which the company is best known.

Hindin Communications, established in 1987, is a New Zealand owned innovator of advanced knowledge and process management solutions. The company has produced its knowledge powered software tools to support knowledge workers within large organisations. Current clients include Ministry of Education, Ministry of Social Development and Land Transport New Zealand and NZAID.
